Aspect Patterns

Introduction to Aspect Patterns

Astrology describes the complex personality pattern inside each of us that makes us an individual. Some charts have many aspect patterns, others few. Some lives feature much change, others follow a steady course. Your chart features 2 aspect patterns. The fewer the patterns that you have, the closer these descriptions should fit you. This report will try to interpret the tightest, most dominant patterns first. Pattern analysis is important for understanding your special path, but there are other planetary aspects in your chart that are not part of these large patterns - these are delineated in your complete natal report. There is an almost infinite variety of planetary arrangements that are possible - the moment of your birth picked one of the possibilities. All humans feel the patterns formed by the planets at our birth, but the manner and extent to which we are able to express those patterns depends on a combination of circumstances and free will. If you are reading this, then your brain is past the stage where it is dominated purely by instinct - a part of you is sensitive to the planetary dynamics in the astral body that was created at your birth. Perhaps seen from the viewpoint of worldly values, some charts may appear to be more fortunate than other charts, but seen spiritually we each have a chart that gives us the opportunity to learn valuable lessons. The external life occupies the ego's attention while the universe teaches the spirit what it needs to learn. You have the opportunity to channel the life energies of the planets in the course of creating and experiencing the joys, rewards, sorrows, and frustrations of being alive. You experience those energies according to the unique configuration frozen in your natal chart, but you always have free will.

Yod

This chart features a frequent aspect pattern known as the Yod, otherwise known as the Finger of God. At least two planets that are in favourable 60-degree sextile aspect to each other, Jupiter and Saturn, form difficult but energising 150-degree inconjunct aspects to at least one focal planet, Mars. The sextile aspect between Jupiter and Saturn tends to define your personality, but how you express yourself in the world is shown by Mars and any planets that conjoin or aspect Mars. Jupiter gives you strong ethics and an inclination to help the less fortunate. You succeed by throwing yourself wholeheartedly into what you do. Saturn makes you loyal and protective of those close to you. You may be a late starter, with it taking a while for your career to reach its peak. You will be self-disciplined and determined to succeed, especially if Mars is involved in the pattern, although this combination can give you a difficult childhood. If with Venus, possibility of loneliness and depression. Saturn makes you especially mature. You carry a seriousness about you. If you succeed in winning a position of power, there is a danger that you will abuse it. Do not elevate business above spirituality, family and community. The inconjunct aspects increase your drive, giving you a powerful longing for a goal that you cannot clearly see. The Yod pattern combines planets from three different sign modalities - Cardinal, Fixed, and Mutable. You desire to act, but action does not come easily. After a long process of personal development, however, your thinking will become more effective. The Yod is called the Finger of God because the nature, sign, and house placement of the focus planet indicates your mission in life, especially if the pattern is tight (the sign degree numbers are close for the planets in the three signs). Refer to the house and sign placement interpretations for Mars.

With Mars as a Yod pattern focus planet, you have so much energy that you rarely sit still. You are always either doing something or learning how to do something. A fierce competitor, sports would appeal to you. A girl with this planet can grow up as a tomboy, be capable of physically strenuous work, and still be very competitive in the glamour department. You can get in trouble if your rough-and-ready competitiveness causes you to cut corners or ignore rules of proper behaviour. But if your energy causes you to trailblaze new standards for excellent work, you will end up admired or envied, with many people wanting to follow your example. A disappointment or failure can motivate you to work doubly hard. The energy from this pattern is more physical than it is mental, unless Mercury or the outer planets are involved.

Talent Triangle

This chart features a frequent aspect pattern known as the Talent Triangle. At least two planets that are in favourable 120-degree trine aspect to each other, Mercury and Saturn, form enabling 60-degree sextile aspects to at least one focal planet, Jupiter. Unlike most aspect patterns, which cross from one side of the zodiac to the other and thereby involve the whole person, Talent Triangles involve no more than one third of the chart circle and are therefore external to the core person. They represent a talent that you can turn on or off. There is a skill which you can develop and to which you might turn for your livelihood, but it is not a mission to which you commit your entire self. There is something which you are good at, and which you enjoy, but it is not your entire life. Refer to the focal planet house and sign placement interpretations - for Jupiter.

The Triangle pattern gives you a talent, something at which you are good. The pattern planet Mercury gives you a facile, witty mind. It enhances your senses and reflexes. You are good at using tools and communicating. The pattern planet Saturn gives you the potential to keep maturing and become a master of your career field. Saturn gives you range and depth and makes your knowledge explicit, not just instinctual. You could become a teacher because you have actual knowledge, even though much of it is just common sense. You know about and are comfortable with all aspects of life. You are old when young. You look for challenges to keep from getting bored.

With Jupiter as a focus planet, you are a prolific worker with a distinct style and identity. You have natural ability and can learn through on-the-job training. You can put in many long hours of study and experiment in your chosen field. You earn your success. You are neither a dilettante nor a narrow scholar, but instead a wide-ranging adventurer. Like an architect, you master both theory and technique. You thoroughly immerse yourself. You are very creative and could be a respected genius of style and expression.
